

Happy Cat and Merry Cat
answer,
“Who’s steering your ship?”

by Mary Catherine Rolston

Copyright © 2018 Mary Catherine Rolston

Illustrated by :

Dedicated to all the students who courageously make effective choices and to all the teachers who have eyes at the back of the heads, diligently watching and coaching students with compassion, fairness and forgiveness....the teacher in this story
..... hmmm or many would say your dearly loved

There were two friends, like twins, much was the same.
Both were nine, spry and Catherine was their name.
They liked to climb. They liked to rhyme.
Nicknames were picked that they used all the time.

Happy Cat and Merry Cat loved to play, giggling and wiggling every day.
They liked to dance. They liked to prance.
They liked to sing. They always took a chance.

At school they were seated together in a grade three-four class,
By the window that over looked the playground covered in grass.
Their teacher was cool, calm and deemed to have eyes at the back of her head.
She caught student misdemeanours quick leaving most in a cloud of dread.

Except for Happy Cat and Merry Cat, they didn't worry about getting caught.

They quietly chatted, passed notes and giggled while being taught.

When apprehended they would sit straight, smile and fold their hands upon their desktop.

This cheeky charm didn't fool the outwitting teacher, she raised one eye brow, stared and stopped.

"Oh I see it's the two 'Cats' up to their chitter chattering conversations.

Hmmm would you care to share your intimate communications?

Don't be shy, this is a lesson meant for discussing different points of view."

Consistently with ease, one of the 'Cats' offered an idea, reflection or solution that was new.

The teacher would smirk, "Bravo for listening to two things, keeping information correct.

Hmmm, BUT, note we have two ears that form a heart so we can listen with compassion and respect.

I want you to think about how you want others to hear you.

Remember to always walk and talk in another person's shoe."

As the year progressed the 'Cats' arrogance grew.
Slowly but surely they were distracted by play and chat not thinking answers through.

They were becoming two dreamy lay felines.
Progressively their work was sloppy and not meeting deadlines.

The teacher passed out their first report card with a sigh and said, "I think that there is a need to make a change."

The two 'Cats' looked at each other with a nervous giggle and wince exchange.

Ladies you are responsible for your choices, there is no one to blame."

They opened the envelopes, sighed and bowed their heads in shame.

No one said change would be easy for this chatty, scattered, rambunctious pair.
The teacher watched the girls intently, worried about their welfare.
"Girls your destiny is in your own hands.
You can make a change with a few questions and plans."

Copyright © 2018 Mary Catherine Rolston

Each girl grimaced, looked at the other, took a deep breath then bit her lip.

The teacher smirked, "Think girls and ask yourselves
who's steering your ship?

What do you want? Is what you're doing getting you there?

I'm not going to interfere, I believe in natural consequences, my style is laissez-faire."

Happy Cat turned in shock, blinked and said, "What does she mean?

Are there no rules? She seems pretty relaxed and serene."

Merry Cat chuckled, "Hmmm I get it, she's right she can't control us.

She doesn't need to yell, scream or put up a fuss."

Happy Cat hook her head and looked confused.

"It's simple if we don't have anyone to blame or excuse.

If we don't work our reports will be weak.

We won't develop the skills and our future will be bleak.

No one can control us. Like she said, "Who's steering your ship?

We're in charge, like a business a proprietorship"

The teacher was in the background eavesdropping on their conversation.
Nodding and smiling she knew these 'Cats' would come to a wise realization.
So girls what's the verdict? I'm happy to help you plan and develop your skills.
I'm not going to argue or have a battle of wills."

Copyright © 2018 Mary Catherine Rolston

Happy Cat and Merry Cat realized the error of their ways.

Changing their mindsets and work habits in a matter of days.

The shrewd and subtle teacher, in true Mary Poppins form,
enlightened her students, engaging them to transform!

Copyright © 2018 Mary Catherine Rolston

